TREEPHONE No. 12.

Hongkong, July 6rm. 1888. Tax Chinese Foreign Customs Reports for last year contain numerous references to the onium trade, and the effect on it of the regulations made under the Additional Article of the Chefoo Convention. Mr. WHITE, the Commissioner at Canton, says that the importation of the drug in foreign vessels at that port showed a steady decline year by year until in 1882 the amount only reached 17 piculs. During the Franco-Chinese hostilities the amount advanced, and in 1884 reached 3,000 piculs. In 1886 there was a decline to 1,070 piculs. "The reason for the preference shown to native vessels," says Mr. WHITE, "is not far to seek : low freight and low duty formed a tempting bait to hative merchants, who were content to run the risks of a short voyage rather than pay higher rates and obtain insurance, with the disadvantage of being called upon to pay the tariff duty. These disadvantages now no longer obtain, and the result is plainly shown by the fact that during the eleven months commencing on the 1st February and ending on the 31st December the im portation amounted to 7,657.68 piculs. der the existing regulations valuable vileges are attached to duly certificated drug in the interior, which should be, and doubtless are, sufficient attraction to the trader, and go far towards the repression of smuggling." With regard to piese goods, Mr. WHITE points out, as mentioned in our article of vesterday, that Countries embraced within the scope of the than formerly; with opium the contrary is the case, as was to be expected. Mr. WHITE speaks of the amuggling of opium which formerly went on, and says :- The network of water which connects the province with the sea rendered smuggling impossible o detection, whilst two free ports-Hongkong and Macan-situated almost at the entrance. of the Canton main river, from which operations could be conducted unchecked, gave additional freedom and boldness to illicit enterprise." What Mr. WHITE means by saying operations could be conducted from Hongkong unchecked we do not know. Certainly there was no control within the colony to prevent amuggling into China, but there was a cordon of Customs stations at the entrances to the harbour, and a fleet of vessels of the Chinese preventive service constantly cruising in the neighbourhood. The precautions were, in fact, so complete, that smuggling, although it undoubtedly went on, was confined within very small limits. Mr. MORGAN, in his report on the Kowloon stations, says it is a matter of regret that no previous statistics are obtainable by reference t which valuable comparisons might be made The native Customs are of course in possession of such statistics, and if they were published they would by comparison show approximately what the extent of the smuggling really was. Happily, however, for all parties, sinuggling has been put a stop to, and only an gradual falling off. It is, as Mr. BREDON historic interest now attaches to the subject. The annual import in native vessels through leays, not by taxation, but by the competithe Kowloon Customs under the present conditions Mr. MORGAN estimates at 3,400 piculs or 2,900 chests per annum. The amount shipped in native bottoms from Macao during the nine months Mr. FARAGO has been in charge of the Lappa station amounts to about 1,000 chests; making allowance for the small trade during the earlier part of this period owing to the heavy stocks in the country, the annual import those relations, though it is said Systow would now be the more natural port to resort to; At the Formosan ports the new regulations do not seem to have materially affected the trade in any way. Mr. CHALmans, in his report on Tamsui, explains the perference for Turkey opium on that market as follows :- " Smokers in Formosa like to buy their opium orude, in small quantities, and prepare it themselves; and Turkey opium meets this requirement best. It can be bought in the raw state even in so small a quantity as half-a-tael weight, and is easily boiled by the purchaser, while the ball of Benares orium cannot well be divided into such minute portions, and is so beset with hask that some skill is required to boil it down economically. Turkey opium possesses and finally lodged at the Tang Wah. an additional advantage for poor amokers, innemuch as the ash which it leaves in the 124 first pipe is sufficiently rich to be mixed with fresh opium and smoked over again." At Poschow the trade has been slightly increased, by a diversion from some of the other ports it is supposed, but the increase is not yet so much as was looked for. The following passage from Mr. HANNEN's report a severe reverse to the Ministry. and address with communications addressed to the will be read with some interest by the Anti-Oriumists: - "Sofarit has not been possible to form any reliable opinion as to the extension, or otherwise, of the growth of native opium in this province; possibly at the end of the current year there may be indications of the influence of the new system on that branch of the trade. At present there is nothingmuch more reliable than rumour to the effect that a considerable impetus to the cultivation of native opium bas been given by the fuller recognition of the trade by Government in the ratification and enforcement of the terms of the Convention. At The SECRETARY said no answer had been any rate, it is easy to see, even within the narrow limits of the Treaty port and its immediate neighbourhood, that there has been given a stimulus to the spread of appreciation and consumption of opium generally such as is likely to afford more satisfaction to the trader than the philanthropist." At Ningpo the value of the opinm imported has decreased from Hk. Tle. 3,000,000 to Hk. Tls. 1,600,000. owing to the trade of the Northern part of the province being divorted to Shanghai, whereas formerly no opium was allowed to enter Chekinng province except through to him that the public should not be excluded Ningpo. At Shanghai the total importations-38,202 obests-were 2,664 chests short of the previous year, but the quantities landed for local consumption were in excess by 3,504 chests. Mr. Novion, in his Chinking report, mentions that in consequence of the increase in the price of foreign opium since the collection of the new lekin by the Customs, the retail dealers have adopted the practice of mixing native with foreign opium, which must in time cause serious harm to the foreign opium trade, to the benefit of the untive drug. Wuhu lost and Kiukiang gained by the equalising of the ingly lost lekin. At Hankow there has not been much change, but Mr. Broon, the Commissioner, makes the following interesting remarks on the competition of the native , drug ;- "The Chinese taxation is not, to my thinking, by was opportunity for the commission of nuisances any means the largest factor to be taken account of in prognosticating the future of the Indian opium trade. On all sides I am told that while opina consumption is increasing in Western China, the use of Indian drug is becoming more and more confined to the rich and the old. The smokers of the young generation, brought up on native drug, are accustomed to its no contamination of the water at present on their way to the barracks. The mortality flavour. The superiority of Indian is either unknown to them or they do not care to pay the report in which mention was made of a heap burying the dead, the people being buried in for it. Total abolition of Chinese taxes of rubbish he thought might be omitted altowould not bring Indian opium to the price of native, not even if China handicaps garbage going into the water people would go home-grown opium by imposing on it and get their water from wells, which was a heavier duties than it now pays. India no doubt can for years produce opium of better quality, but its relative superiority tends to get typhoid fever. grow less each year. The serious point looks to me to be that quality seems to be getting to count for less, and price for more, in the competition. At the present moment. supposing all the duty and lekin now paid on Indian opium to be removed, and placed on native opium in addition to what it already bears, Honan opium-nearly as good as Patna-could be bought here for at least Tls. 40 a picul under the price of the latter. Such a thing as prepared opium boiled exclusively from foreign, and free from all admixture of native raw material can hardly be found on the market to-day." At Ichang opium does not figure amongst the importe, so that the consumption must be entirely of native opium. From all the Northern ports comes the same tale of competition by the native drug, which is steadily making way. It must therefore be anticipaled that the foreign import will show a tion of the native article that the Indian opium trade with China is chiefly threatened; The Chinese squadron of war yessels, consisting of the frigates Huan-lai, Kai-chi, Cheng ching, Nan-sheng, Nan-suy, and Pao-ma, under command of Admiral Wu An Kang, arrived at

The Governor seemed to forget the plan of the past, but in due time came to the conclusion that it was better to follow out the engagement, than bring himself into disrepute. A house was secured, and in a few days -now a week ago—the marriage occurred. All the inferior officials appeared ready with presents, and now the young man is higher up in the world. Such is a romance of Chinese life.

The treasurer of the province, a Manchu Chang Pao, has just been degraded from office. He has been in office here for a good many years, and is now over seventy years of age. Having one of the most lucrative positions in the province, he held on a little too long. He should have memorialised the Throne for leave of absence on account of failing eye-sight, or sleepass nights, or severe naryous pains in the whole body. The present judge, a Mongol, temporarily fills the office of treasurer, while the Taotai from Yen-chow-fu will act as judge.

The city is for the most part safe and posceful. The opposition that was raised against the English missionary for renting a house has all ceased, and he now has a quiet possession. The affairs of the Roman Catholics at Yenchow-fu are uneatisfactory. The people have quieted down, and the scholars do not seem inclived to oppose farther, but the officials are as unyielding as ever. The Bighop from there went The opposition now takes a new character. The objection now raised to the property is that it was claudestinely sold. The Bishop, finding no sort of satisfaction here, has again gone to Peking. The opposition in the city of Tai-an-fu still continues. The only English missionary who was left there to bear the brunt of the trouble, has concluded to take a change by going to Peking. We believe he does not intend to seek any aid from the British Legation, but will wait for the American and French Legations to push their matters through. The opposition there is more unreasonable and in greater violation of law than that elsewhere, in that the peaceful propagation of Christianity, the freedom for Chinese to serve the foreigner, and the necessary purchase of food are furbidden. The officials, following the lead of the Governor, do nothing except aid the local gentry and scholars. In fact the present attitude of the Governor is affecting the whole province. All the officials very quickly learn that the Governor is not inolined to protect the missionaries in their work, or pusish guilty persons participating in anti-

The Queen's Birthday was celebrated by the opening of the Queen Victoria Park on the Capadian side of Ningara Falls. From the Clifton House up the river for two miles an elegant park has been created. The mills, the residences in the swamps, and the crumbling banks have been displaced by every sort of beautified and substantial structures and devices of landscape art. Henceforth tourists will not only be much more gratified with their visit to this wonderful spot than has been the case hitherte, but they will find the official charges more moderate than the former charges. The works had been begun and completed within a year, at a cost of nearly half a million dollars.

There seems to be no doubt that the "frigate hird," an inhabitant of the tropical seas, is the swiftest bird that flies. It has been impossible On Panis .to calculate its rate of flight within fixed limits. The pectoral muscles are immensely doveloped, and weigh nearly one-fourth as much as the whole body of the bird. Another rapid flyer is the common "black swift." It has been computed that the great speed it attains is about 276 miles on hour, which, if maintained for about six hours, would varry the bird from its Summer retreat in England to Central Africa. The American "canvas Black duck" is commonly computed to be capabe of flying 200 miles an hour.

A United States navy officer has invented a life-saving device for the dreaded emergency of "man overhoard" which promises to be of value. A raft-buoy of sufficient size to support a man is attached to the vessel by a long and strong but light wire-rope. The buoy is stocked with a small supply of provisions, and is furnished with a potassium compound which, upon contact with the water, ignites and burns brilliantly for twenty minutes ... If the drowning man, aided by the flame, succeeds in reaching the raft, he can be drawn to the vessel without the necessity of lowering boats. Should the rope break and his own vessel less track of him, he has, with the provisions, a chance of sustaining life until picked up by others.

Instructions have been at Sheerness Dockyard for preparations to be made for building a fast war pruiser of a new type, designated for the Royal Navy by Mr. W. H. A watch dial now being made in the Waltham works contains, instead of the usual numerals, twelve small but distinct silbouatte figures representing a woman with a very young child in her arms. At one o'clock the lady and her little baby are clearly dupicted, the infant being in long clothes. At two o'clock the same figures appear, but the child is a little larger. At three o'clock mamma is still there, but the infant is in short clothes. At four o'clock and so on up to eight o'clock, when he goes to school for the first time. At nine o'clock he may be seen with his college gown and mortar-board, and the happy smile of the now elderly but happy mother. At ten o'clock the death-bed scene, where he parts with his beloved mother. At eleven o'clock he is a middle-aged man, over whom the snows of many winters have passed. The birds were evidently fatigued, after a long flight, and allowed themselves to be caught by the people heartily. The little winged strangers remained all night on the vessel, and in the morning at seven o'clock the head look-out bird had, no doubt, sighted the Balearic Isles, for the whole flock made for land, after having spent a comfortable and refreshing night on board ship.

The London season of 1888 is much the same as its predecessors in its leading features, no doubt; but it has its points of difference too. There is one of them, in particular, which has been growing, little by little, during the past few seasons, until it now constitutes a very real line of demarcation between the present season and that of a decade ago. Some years ago; society could not tolerate anything less ceremonious than a black freek coat tightly buttoned across the clest, and surmounted by the orthodox bell-topper. Little by little, however, reform, or revolution, crept in. First, the black frock coat was varied by very dark grey. Then the more comfortable "morning" coat grandaally replaced the "frock," until last year, on the occasion of the garden party at Buckingham Palace, almost every man present had, it was said, to give his tailor a special order for a frock cost, so completely had that garment gone out of fashion. Last year, teo, saw a considerable revival of the cool and comfortable white duck trousers of 40-years ago. Men whose walk is the Strand or the City, rather than Piccadilly or the Park, are more daring still. One sees numbers of gentlemen on a hot day with coats open, and no waistcoat to veil the starchy glories of the shirt front. And mighty seasonable they look therein. Flannels and straw hats likewise, are no longer objects of astoniahment if seen within the four mile radius. Last (but surely not least in importance), the bell-topper, the abomination of civilisation itself, is threatened. For does not the Prince of Wales himself go down to Sandown in a "pot" hat? Imagination boggles at the though of what Society would have said to a party of gentlemen in "pot" hats at a fashionable race meeting a dozen years ago. The ing, too, in quite a common sense direction.

POST-OFFICE NOTICES.

When Correspondence has been mistent or telayed thoth of which are liable to imppen occasionally) all that the addresses need do is to note on the cover, Sent to --- , or Received . at 7 pon, or as the case way be, and forward it, without any other writing whatever; to the Postmaster-General. This should be acted on the first time cause of complaint occurs; it is a mistake to let such mutters pass for fear of giving trouble, a course which generally gives 4 more trouble in the end.
